The Place to Grow

"The Place to Grow" is a community asset of beauty and inspiration. An ongoing project of the Master Gardener Foundation of Benton & Franklin Counties, the garden was developed to demonstrate, test, and teach gardening in its many forms in our unique climate and soils. The garden is supported by Master Gardener volunteers and is funded entirely by donations from individuals, organizations, and local businesses.

Visitors can explore more than 25 distinctive and ever-changing theme gardens. The gardens currently feature over 50 trees, 800 roses, 100 shrubs, and even a children's garden at the serene 2-acre site.

Have a peaceful stroll, take some pictures, bring a lunch, relax in the shade. Consult and visit with the Master Gardeners!

Goals of the Demonstration Garden

- Demonstrate various types of locally suitable trees, shrubs, and other plants, and their uses in home landscapes and gardens.
- Raise public awareness of sound gardening practices through teaching, testing, and demonstration.
- Provide a place of beauty and tranquility for garden visitors of all ages.

Upcoming Projects:

- Renovate the Rock and Water Garden areas, creating an outdoor classroom and making the area safer and easier to maintain.
- Repair and upgrade existing irrigation using newer technology to make the system more water-efficient.
- Replace aging arbors in the Rose Garden.

Thank You!

The Demonstration Garden is the effort of volunteers and the WSU Master Gardener Foundation steering committee. Since breaking ground on August 6,1999, the Demonstration Garden has benefitted from the donation of about 64,000 volunteer hours and the financial donations of citizens, foundations, and the business community.

If you would like to memorialize a loved one, commemorate a special event in your life, or make a donation to support the garden, please see the back page of this brochure.

The Demonstration Garden is free and open to the public daily from dawn to dusk. Its is accessible with paved pathways.
