Most experts agree that the best way to combat climate change is through carbon pricing. However, the public seems unwilling to support carbon taxes. Is there a way forward?

Aseem Prakash, professor and founding director of the University of Washington Center for Environmental Politics, discusses the carbon tax, public opinion and what needs to be done going forward.