

THE FOLEY INSTITUTE

The Thomas S. Foley Institute for Public Policy and Public Service

Foley Distinguished Lecture

Constitutional Crises

Real and imagined

Thursday April 25 | 4:30 p.m.

Spark G45 Auditorium

Over the past several decades, American political rhetoric has been increasingly filled with cries of constitutional crisis, and such worries have only increased since the 2016 elections. What does constitutional crisis mean, and how would we know if we are in one?

Keith Whittington is professor of politics at Princeton University. He is the author of numerous award-winning books, including most recently Speak Freely: Why Universities Must Defend Free Speech.