Addiction in the Northwest
Addressing the drug crisis

Tuesday September 24 | 12:00 p.m.
Foley Speaker’s Room | 308 Bryan Hall

Addiction is a major public health issue in the United States. Millions grapple with addiction, and the Northwest is no exception. How can we address the drug problem in the region?

John Roll is professor and vice dean for research at WSU’s Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine in Spokane.

Bob Lutz is the health officer for the Spokane Regional Health District.

Cosponsored with the Graduate and Professional Student Science Policy Initiative