The current generation is the first to truly understand the implications of climate change, and the last to be able to do something about it. It’s imperative to make change, and not to lose hope.

Dr. Robin Meyers is an NPR commentator, author, and senior minister of Mayflower Congregational UCC Church. Distinguished Professor of Social Justice emeritus at Oklahoma City University.

Cosponsored with The Common Ministry at WSU