The Good Friday Agreement was a major breakthrough for peace after years of civil conflict. However, the border agreement that now exists between the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland is a major sticking point in any Brexit deal. Join Paul O’Connor of the Pat Finucane Centre in Northern Ireland, who will talk about the history of the border conflict and how it is affecting Brexit.