Recent events in cities like Portland and Kenosha have highlighted the growing radicalization of protest. Professor Lowndes will discuss the discursive links between the Trump campaign and the emergent right-wing street violence in historical context.

Joe Lowndes is professor of political science at the University of Oregon. His most recent co-authored book explores the complex racial politics of the contemporary U.S. right from the militia movement to the Alt-Right to the mainstream Republican Party.

Watch all events live on the Foley Institute YouTube channel (url: https://www.youtube.com/c/FoleyInstitute/videos)