Foley Distinguished Lecture

American inequality
The deaths of despair

Tuesday September 7 | 12:00 p.m.
https://youtu.be/fId39zDuipc

Professor Sir Angus Deaton is the Dwight D. Eisenhower Professor of Economics and International Affairs at Princeton University. He was awarded the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences in 2015.

His research areas include the study of poverty, inequality, health, wellbeing, and economic development, and his most recent book, with Anne Case, is Deaths of Despair and the Future of Capitalism, published by Princeton University Press in 2020.

Watch all events live on the Foley Institute Youtube Channel

(url: youtube.com/c/FoleyInstitute/videos)