Theme: Living With(in) Borders: Immigration, Indigeneity, and Education

Immigration is a topic of great concern around the world. From borders and how they are constructed and enforced, to the migrant crisis resulting from increased poverty, famine, and war, people have reacted with both openness and care as well as with hostility. According to Gloria Anzaldúa, borders are “where the Third World grates against the first and bleeds” (1987/2012). Often silenced or marginalized are indigenous peoples and the diverse knowledge(s) from around the world, forcibly moved from and in some cases still living on ancestral lands.

The conference theme, Living With(in) Borders: Immigration, Indigeneity, and Education, invites researchers from a wide range of disciplines to examine the following questions: How can researchers and practitioners contribute to more nuanced understandings of immigration, indigeneity, and education? How do we teach the historical record and ongoing issues of enslavement, dominance, and forced migration? How can we “speak back to manifest destinies” (Calderon, 2014)? In this conference we will discuss ways we can talk and act productively and sensitively about immigration, indigeneity, and education.

We invite proposals from diverse perspectives that address the conference theme. Such topics may include but are not limited to:

- Student activism and immigrant justice
- Post-colonial and Indigenous perspectives towards decolonizing research
- Land Education and Place-Based Education
- Immigration and language rights
- Tribal sovereignty
- Teaching immigration and indigeneity in K-12 and higher education
- Allies in education and immigrants and indigenous peoples

Call for Presenters

Globalization, Diversity and Education Conference 2016

Submission deadline:
December 5, 2016 at 12 noon Pacific Time

There are three types of presentations: paper or panel; alternative session/workshop, or poster:

- Paper and Panel Presentations: Please clearly explain the presentation and its relationship to the conference. What is the question or problem that is being addressed? Who are the primary scholarly sources being drawn upon to frame the discussion? Presenters of individual papers will be grouped into sessions of three to four (by the conference chair). Paper sessions are 75 minutes and will include an opportunity for audience conversation. Each presenter will have approximately 15 minutes to present his or her work. Please be prepared to adhere to this timeframe. A panel will have 75 minutes and should have no fewer than three and no more than five presenters.

- Alternative Sessions/Workshops: Propose something alternative to traditional conference sessions or host a workshop! This should be a hands-on session dealing with an important issue related to the conference theme. Proposals should describe a) what the session will be about, b) what the objectives of the session are, and c) how participants will be involved. Alternative sessions and workshops are 75 minutes long.

- Posters: The 60 minute poster session allows for informal discussions with other participants while the exhibit is on display. Posters can display research, teaching tips, curriculum development ideas, and many other areas of interest related to the use of technologies. The exhibit should be self-explanatory. Presenters exhibit their poster on a 4’ x 4’ display stand (provided). The poster should include a title, the name and institutional affiliation of the presenter(s), text, photos, drawings, graphs, charts or whatever best represents the topic. Posters will be set up in the morning on the day of the presentation; presenters are required to attend the conference and to be at their posters during the formal 60 minute poster session.

All proposals will be reviewed anonymously. Thank you for your submission.
