The whole department--faculty, staff, students, and anyone else sharing in our common mission and purpose--is invited to help kick-off the new academic year with the department chair's annual report and charge for the coming year. This will not be a technical physics/astronomy colloquium but rather a review of the past year's highlights, an introduction to new members of the department, and a brief statement of the chair's outlook for the coming academic year and beyond. As always, there will be time for questions, concerns, and heckling.
