Mayyadah Zagelow Selected for National 4-H Award and Scholarship!

Mayyadah Zagelow receives $5,000 scholarship and will serve as 4-H’s national youth spokesperson for Healthy Living

Chevy Chase, MD (October 5, 2020) – In celebration of National 4-H Week, National 4-H Council today announced that Mayyadah Zagelow, 18, of Seattle, Wash., is the winner of the 2021 4-H Youth in Action Pillar Award for Healthy Living. Zagelow will be recognized nationally for her commitment to provide equitable and inclusive opportunities for all young people. The 4-H Youth in Action Awards began in 2010 to recognize 4-H’ers who have used the knowledge they gained in 4-H to create a lasting impact in their communities.

Zagelow, a Washington State University Extension 4-H’er, is passionate about ensuring all young people have a place to belong: a place where youth feel not only accepted, but also valued and intentionally included. That’s why she launched the Washington State 4-H Teen Equity & Inclusion Task Force. The taskforce is designed to educate teens and adults alike about gender identities, expression, orientation and biological sex, as well as the challenges facing the LGBTQ+ community. Thus far, approximately 1,050 people have been engaged in her equity work, including youth, adults, and task force members.

In addition to outreach opportunities through workshops and grassroots efforts, Zagelow is also working to foster a safe community within the taskforce for teens to feel comfortable discussing their mental health and the unique challenges each person faces.

“So many health effects relate to belonging that we don’t think about,” Zagelow said. “When kids don’t have a support system of peers and adults, that sometimes leads to using things like drugs to cope. It’s so important to not only have the support of our peers, but to also have supportive adults who care about you and recognize you for your identity. My 4-H leaders have done that really well.”

Zagelow knows first-hand the difficulty of struggling with mental health. From a young age, she struggled with anxiety and selective mutism. Combined with bullying at school by those she once considered friends, Zagelow felt isolated and betrayed. When she joined 4-H, her journey to overcoming anxiety began.

Through 4-H, she learned to turn difficult experiences into empowering opportunities as she learned to speak up and speak out for herself and for others who feel voiceless. Now a seasoned public speaker, Zagelow has addressed more than 1000 people to advocate for equitable experiences for all.

Zagelow will receive a $5,000 scholarship for higher education and will serve as an advocate and spokesperson for 4-H Healthy Living programming. She is joined by three other 2021 Youth in Action Pillar Winners, Madelyn Zimmerman of Indiana (Agriculture), Elizabeth Weidner of Illinois (Civic Engagement) and Aidan Spencer of Oklahoma (STEM).

Washington Department of Agriculture Seeks to Fill Vacancy on the Board of the Fairs Commission

The following is a message from Teresa Norman from the Washington Department of Agriculture:

We have a vacancy on the board of the Fairs Commission. The term is for three years and it’s an eastern Washington position. Those who are appointed to the board usually stay on for more than one term. We have another expiring term at the end of February 2021, which will also be an eastern Washington position. That current board member might decide to step down at the end of her term so we may have to recruit for two new commissioners.

Recruiting for the Fairs Commission is difficult and our board is becoming heavily weighted in terms of retired ag teachers. It would be nice to get other experience represented on the board, such as 4-H or other youth group, show, or fair experience.

Persons interested in serving on the Board of the Fair Commission are encouraged to contact Teresa, as follows.

Operations Contingency Plan Templates for Horse Farms in the Event of Covid-19 and Other Emergencies Now Available From the University of Minnesota Extension

The University of Minnesota Extension Livestock Team has released a set of customizable forms that can be used to create an operations contingency plan for livestock owner’s farms. The contingency forms are meant to provide livestock owners a starting point to outline essential livestock care if they and/or their managers become sick with COVID-19 or another emergency occurs. In these situations, care would likely need to be administered by a non-household member. The contingency plan is meant to cover short-term (e.g. 30 days), essential care only and is not meant to serve as a comprehensive care plan. The intended use of these forms is for emergency planning purposes. Operations contingency plan templates for both privately owned horse farms and boarding or training horse farms are available on the Extension Horse Website: https://extension.umn.edu/horse/horse-ownership#horse-operations-contingency-plans-1599014.

Forms (fillable PDFs) must be first downloaded and saved to a computer, and then can be completed and printed. Templates are also available for dairy, beef, swine, poultry, honeybee, and small ruminant operations on the Extension website: https://extension.umn.edu/livestock-operations/preparing-livestock-emergencies.

IMPORTANT REMINDER Regarding WSU Extension Adult/Youth Interactions during COVID-19

As we are all in communication via technology with youth at this time, I would like to take this opportunity to remind everyone of WSU Extension’s policy on interactions. Under this policy, AT NO TIME should one adult be meeting or communicating with youth WITHOUT the presence of another adult. This policy pertains to Zoom conferences, telephone conversations, text messages, social media posts, etc. To facilitate communication, make certain to cc another adult on written communications, and invite another adult to be present during virtual meetings. The second adult is recommended to be a WSU volunteer; other adults can serve in this role if you’re in a pinch.

National 4-H Council Shares Survey on COVID-19 Effects on Youth Mental Health and Loneliness

A new survey commissioned by National 4-H Council, and conducted by the Harris Poll, finds that 7 in 10 teens are struggling with their mental health in the wake of COVID-19. More than half of those surveyed shared that the pandemic has increased their feelings of loneliness, with 64 percent believing it will have a lasting impact on their mental health. The survey, conducted in May 2020, is among the first to examine the impact this unprecedented public health crisis has had on U.S. teens. The aims of the survey are to help practitioners gain a deeper understanding of the state of teen mental health and to gather teen perspectives on the issue as 4-H aims to empower young people with the resources and support to address their health and well-being head on.
