INTRODUCTION

Almost all of the information you will need to be a Master Gardener can be found in the Washington State University Master Gardener Handbook available at the WSU Master Gardener website (<http://mastergardener.wsu.edu>). However, every County Extension Office in the State of Washington is different and organizes their Master Gardener program in a variety of ways to better meet the needs of their individual communities. This Volunteer Handbook provides additional information you will need to perform your Master Gardener duties here in Pend Oreille County.

Please remember this handbook is a work in progress. The Extension Office is always interested in updating information to better help the Master Gardeners fulfil their missions and goals so we will be constantly improving this handbook to better serve your needs. Please feel free to contact me with your questions and suggestions for additional information that you would like to see included in this handbook.

Thanks to all the Master Gardeners who have contributed to this handbook; especially Jan Wood who wrote the initial version.

Master Gardener and 4-H Program Coordinator

MG shall not endorse any particular product, business, or service. MG should mention a product by its chemical name and then include products from several companies to clarify the recommendation.

MASTER GARDENER PLANT CLINIC TEAMS

Our Master Gardener organization is made of Master Gardener Teams. For every programming project whether it be organizing a class or building a compost bin our teams get together to plan the event and at that time each team will volunteer to complete part of the project. For each project your team may do a different job depending upon what your team agrees to do. For example, one team may volunteer to do the publicity for one project and then volunteer to provide refreshments for the next project. During years when we have Trainees, teams will be assigned 5-6 new trainees and it will be the job of the team to "mentor" those trainees and include them in the meetings and activities of the team. Trainees are assigned to teams during their initial interviews.

Each team will consist of at least 2 Master Gardeners but 5-6 members are most efficient. Master Gardeners can make up their own teams based on other Master Gardeners with whom they wish to work. They can join or form a team upon a special interest or they can join or form a team based upon when they are able to volunteer time. For example, those Master Gardeners who work during the day and can only volunteer evenings might wish to form a team. If a Master Gardener does not care which team you are on then teams will be formed based upon geographic location. There are 5 teams that come in to plant clinic on a different week of the month.

Teams are flexible and a Master Gardener can leave one team and join another at any time. Master Gardeners may also "float" and work with another team on individual projects.
