A Vocabulary for Racism and Equity Work

With the resurgence of public concern regarding social justice issues in our country, some of us may feel a lack of connection to the issues, or we may be having misgivings about long-held beliefs about race, equity and justice, our own and other's. Recognizing we may be disconnected or ill-equipped to engage with others about this topic in meaningful ways may also leave us feeling confused or defensive about an issue that deserves greater personal investment from each of us.

Beginning in July, Extension will host several reading and discussion groups to help volunteers, staff and faculty come to a deeper understanding of what equity is and how racism continues to exist in our democracy. The reading groups will be hosted regionally and will include people who live and work close to you. Generally, the reading groups will last one month, and meet once a week by Zoom to review and discuss seminal readings concerned with race and equity.

The exact dates and times of the reading group Zooms will be coordinated by your local host. If you are interested in being a part of a reading group, please complete the Qualtrics registration below:
