Spokane Junior Livestock Show Competition Goes Online

Due to the ongoing response to the COVID-19 virus and the resulting closure of the Spokane County Fairgrounds, the 85th annual Junior Livestock Show of Spokane, originally scheduled for May 5–9, is being done online instead of having an in-person competition. The accompanying market sale for this year is cancelled.

The Junior Livestock Show is a non-profit organization open to any member of 4-H or Future Farmers of America (FFA). In Washington, 4-H is overseen by WSU Extension. Participants in the show mostly come from Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Montana, though it is open to anyone in 4-H or FFA from anywhere in the U.S.

“We still wanted to do something for the kids, who have put so much time and effort into raising their animals,” said Lynn Cotter, Junior Livestock Show manager. “This is new for everyone, and we’re still working to figure out the logistics, but we’ll be ready to judge the competition on May 7.” Instead of going to Spokane, participants will record a video of them with their animals. They’ll receive instructions on what angles to show, so their animals can be judged. Then they will submit those videos using a third-party company the show is contracting with.

“The kids won’t be able to meet up with or make new friends in person, but this will still allow them to experience the friendly competition that is a staple of the show,” Cotter said. “We talked with a similar show in Arizona that did this recently using the same technology we’ll use, and they had a phenomenal response. So we’re encouraged we’ll have a successful virtual show.”

The Spokane show will have judges that watch every video and award ribbons for top animals. Due to privacy concerns, the videos will not be posted publicly. Since the market sale is cancelled, event organizers are asking anyone interested in purchasing an animal for meat to reach out to 4-H or to Cotter herself. “These kids have to sell their animals themselves now, when they’d normally have an outlet at the market sale,” Cotter said. “So we’ll do everything we can to help them.”

4-H Virtual Volunteer Conference

Virginia 4-H is putting on a virtual volunteer conference next Saturday, April 25, 2020. Attendance is free and open to everyone, and we have some really great sessions for those interested in leadership development.

In the wake of the current crisis we were forced to cancel the normal face-to-face spring conference of the Virginia Association of Adult 4-H Volunteer Leaders. In its place, we are proud to offer a one-day virtual volunteer conference with some wonderful sessions to provide high quality skill and leadership development. While the conference is 4-H focused, many of these sessions will be applicable to Extension professionals and/or volunteers outside 4-H as well.

When: Saturday, April 25, 2020

Format: All sessions will be offered through Zoom, and will be accessible online or via telephone

Cost: This conference is FREE and open to everyone!

Registration / Session Access: Participants need to register online at <https://forms.gle/zr2zLM84xvtiUoU89>. Everyone who registers will receive an email on Friday, April 24 that contains access information to each of the sessions.

Keynote / Capnote: We are thrilled that our opening keynote will be delivered by Dr. Ed Jones, Director of Virginia Cooperative Extension. Our closing capnote will be a moving address by Debbie McDonald, Mission to Market Team from National 4-H Council.

Workshop Sessions: There are 11 fantastic sessions divided into four workshop blocs from which participants can choose, featuring presenters from Virginia and across the country. There is something for everyone!

Session Recordings: Each session will be recorded, and those registered will receive access to all recordings following the conclusion of the conference.

Please help spread the word, as this will be a great development opportunity which is not to be missed! See you on April 25!
