Family Value Scenario

The Turner family likes to spend vacations camping in state parks. They make it a habit to take along a couple extra garbage bags — one to pick up cans for recycling and another for trash that other campers have left on the ground.

Family Value Scenario

The other night Mr. Ross told his family about a hard situation at work. A fellow employee had asked him to cheat on an important report but Mr. Ross had said he would not do it. Fourteen-year-old Zach told his Dad he had a similar experience when someone at school had wanted to look at his paper during a test. He didn't let his friend cheat off his test.

Family Value Scenario

The Hernandez family got some money back for a tax return and they need to decide how to use the money. They would like a new car but instead of using the money this way, they decide to take a membership in the fitness center so they can use the exercise equipment and work out together.

Family Value Scenario

Stephanie is working overtime to earn money to replace the family car, which is just about worn out. Her children are helping out at home with extra chores so Mom can put in overtime.

Family Value Scenario

Fawn lives next door to Mrs. Halvorson, an older woman who is in her nineties. In the summer, Fawn helps mow her yard.

Family Value Scenario

The Shin family takes time each week to do something fun together like watching a movie or riding bikes.

Family Value Scenario

The Connor family attends church most Sundays as a family. They pray together at meals and when someone they know has a special need.

Family Value Scenario

The Williams family has the custom of letting each family member choose what is for dinner on their birthday.

Family Value Scenario

The Rogers use their Advent and Lenten folders from church to collect money for the poor in other countries.

Family Value Scenario

Kevin will miss his weekly golf outing because he will be attending Isaac's parent-teacher conference at school.

Family Value Scenario

Alesha and C.J. join their mom in a fund-raising walk for cancer research.

Family Value Scenario

Every day the Santiagos help each other remember to feed and walk Pongo, their dog.

Making Our Family Shield

Instruction Card

1. For this activity you will need to decide on four family values you have.
2. Draw a family shield shape of your choosing on the poster board.
3. Next, draw lines dividing four sections for your values leaving space for your family name.
4. Find magazine clippings or make drawings to represent each of your values. Label each section with the value.
