VI. Constituent Concerns
A. Inquiry on the idea that the University of Washington is considered higher value than WSU. What would it take for WSU to increase its perceived value. -A. Dimitrov
B. This is the first year that WSU included career track faculty in the AAUP report. Is the inclusion of career track faculty salaries required for submission by all universities? Or did the Office of Institutional Research report transparent data that resulted in a negative outcome for WSU’s ranking in the US News Report. -J. Schneider
   a. Fran Hermiston director of IR communicated that some universities do report the career track faculty salaries but not all. The guidelines for reporting to the US News Report is not necessarily clear and was not the only factor in the WSU ranking shift.
C. Salary inversions concern as it relates to new associate professor salaries. -V. Walden
   a. Salary equity program is designed to help identify faculty that fall into the category of being impacted by salary inversions the most. -L. Hill D. Faculty and Instructor displeasure with the access center relations and agreement on accommodations. -V. Walden
   a. Faculty liaison to the Access Center P. Buckley communicated that negotiations for student time accommodations are not negotiated by the student. The Access Center establishes the extended time allowance based on the recommendation of the faculty. -V. Walden E. Inquiry regarding the vote from last meeting regarding the EQJS designation and the pending re-written guidelines. When will the new guidelines be outlined for departments to gain compliance with the new diversity guidelines. -J. Bonzo
  a. Christine will follow up F. Staffing issues concerns with the Pullman Access center. -J. Sabin-McEwen
  a. The volume of Access Center Accommodations requests seems to be increasing and Access Center employee capacity has been reduced due to staffing shortages. -P. Buckley
  b. Christine will follow up
G. Concern for the idea of fewer classes and fewer programs and increased class sizes as it relates to the quality of education. -A Dimitrov / P. Skilton
