I. Objectives

A. The School of Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs offers two graduate degrees and two graduate certificate programs:
1. Doctor of Philosophy in Political Science
2. Master of Arts in Political Science
3. Graduate Certificate Program in Global Justice and Security Studies
4. Graduate Certificate Program in Bioethics

B. Discipline: The Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Program is designed to increase student understanding of the nature of politics, the role of philosophy and ethics in policy making and public affairs, the operation of the political system and its institutions, and the development and reform of public policy. Courses and research are grounded in theoretical foundations upon which students can learn to address real-world problems. Emphasis is placed on understanding, designing, and conducting research from multiple perspectives to help students become educated policymakers, researchers, and scholars. Substantive emphases include American politics and institutions, global politics, public policy and administration, political psychology/behavior, ethics, and political theory. Courses are taught and research is conducted from an interdisciplinary perspective by a diversely educated graduate faculty. School faculty have a wide range of research and teaching interests, and the School is nationally and internationally recognized for scholarship with a focus on problem-driven research that confronts both traditional and emerging challenges in the U.S. and throughout the world.

C. Mission of the Program: The mission of the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Program is to advance the development of political science research and theory, increase understanding of its philosophical underpinnings, and train graduate students to conduct and understand theoretically based research. The major aim of all our graduate degree programs is to provide students with a broad and thorough training in the theories and methods of political science and/or philosophy so that they can be successful professionals in a variety of applied, educational, and scholarly settings. Upon completion of their graduate program, graduate students in Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs will be able to read and evaluate data and social science research, analyze and develop policy, conduct independent research related to public affairs, handle normative issues, and communicate original research findings and analyses of secondary research cogently for consideration by multiple audiences.

II. Membership

A. Graduate Faculty within the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program may be WSU Tenure Track, WSU Career Track, or WSU adjunct/adjunct faculty, subject to the limitations and definitions within this document. Graduate Faculty designated as initial Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program Graduate Faculty (listed in Section IX of this document) will be approved when new bylaws are approved by the Faculty Senate. Graduate Faculty subsequently added to the program via the process outlined in section II.B below are approved by the Graduate School.

1. WSU Pullman and Vancouver Campus Participation
   a. The M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Political Science, the graduate certificate in Global Justice and Security Studies, and the graduate certificate in Bioethics are offered through the Pullman Campus of Washington State University as formally approved and authorized by the appropriate accrediting body for Washington State University (e.g., NWCCU). The faculty at other campuses and extension sites support this program but have not been officially approved and authorized to directly advertise and offer the degree as individual campuses.
b. The Master of Public Affairs degree is offered through the Vancouver Campus of Washington State University as formally approved and authorized by the appropriate accrediting body for Washington State University (e.g., NWCCU). The faculty at other campuses and extension sites support this program but have not been officially approved and authorized to directly advertise and offer the degree as individual campuses.

2. Graduate Faculty Participation
   a. Location: Graduate Faculty participation in Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs is independent and separate from academic department, school, college, campus, or extension site affiliations.
   b. Disciplinary Expertise: All Graduate Faculty in the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program must have roles that align with current Washington Administrative Code Regulations (WAC 250-61-100). Graduate faculty within Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs are expected to have a Ph.D. or equivalent doctoral-level degree in a field related to political science or philosophy. In addition, they must have demonstrated disciplinary expertise in mentoring and teaching of graduate students in this field, and relevant professional accomplishments.
   c. Active Research: Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty must be actively involved in research related to political science or philosophy as evidenced by peer-reviewed publications (or similar professional accomplishment) as well as graduate student mentoring within the past five (5) years.

3. Faculty Roles (see II.B for the approval process)
   a. Tenure Track Faculty in the School: All Tenure Track Faculty (pre-tenured and tenured) from the School of Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs are automatically approved Graduate Faculty in Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs, entitled to act as chair, co-chair, and member of graduate student advisory committees, teach graduate courses, serve as Director of Graduate Studies, and serve on the Graduate Studies Committee. They are voting eligible.
   b. Tenure Track Faculty outside the School: Tenure Track Faculty outside of the School of Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs who are approved Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program Graduate Faculty are entitled to act as co-chair or member of graduate student advisory committees and teach graduate courses. They may not serve as Director of Graduate Studies nor on the Graduate Studies Committee. They cannot chair student advisory committees, and when serving as co-chair, they must co-chair with a Tenure Track Faculty member who is also a member of the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty. They are not voting eligible.
   c. Career Track Faculty in the School: Career Track Faculty include non-Tenure Track research, scholar, and clinical faculty. Career Track from the School of Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty who are approved Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program Graduate Faculty are entitled to act as co-chair or member of graduate student advisory committees, teach graduate courses, serve as Director of Graduate Studies, and serve the Graduate Studies Committee. They cannot chair student advisory committees and when serving as co-chair, they must co-chair with a Tenure Track Faculty member who is also a member of the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty. They are voting eligible.
d. Adjoint and Adjunct Faculty: Professionals external to WSU may be granted Graduate Faculty participation within Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs if they are first officially approved as adjoint or adjunct faculty for WSU. Adjoint faculty who are approved as Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty are entitled to as a member of graduate student advisory committees and teach graduate courses. They may not serve as Director of Graduate Studies nor on the Graduate Studies Committee. They cannot chair or co-chair student advisory committees. They are not voting eligible. Adjunct faculty who are approved as Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty are entitled to act as a member of graduate student advisory committees and teach graduate courses. They may not serve as Director of Graduate Studies nor on the Graduate Studies Committee. They cannot chair or co-chair student advisory committees. They are not voting eligible.

e. Emeritus Faculty: Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty who enter Emeritus status may complete their current terms as chairs of graduate student advisory committees but may not sit as chair on new student advisory committees. Approved Emeritus Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty are entitled to act as co-chair or member of graduate student advisory committees. They may not serve as Director of Graduate Studies nor the Graduate Studies Committee. They cannot chair student advisory committees and when serving as co-chair, they must co-chair with a Tenure Track Faculty member who is also a member of the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Graduate Faculty. They are not voting eligible.

f. Individuals who are not Graduate Faculty in the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program: Individuals not officially participating as Graduate Faculty within the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program may serve on graduate student advisory committees as outlined here. Faculty who are members of the Graduate Faculty in another WSU graduate program, whose committee appointment is approved by the Program Director of the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program, may serve on a graduate student’s advisory committee. They have no additional rights and responsibilities in this program, unless they are approved as Graduate Faculty in the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program. Individuals not officially participating as Graduate Faculty in any Graduate Program at WSU (for example, a faculty member from another university or research entity) may be approved to serve as a member for an individual student’s advisory committee on a case-by-case basis. The committee chair for that student should forward the name and a curriculum vitae of the desired committee member to the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Director of Graduate Studies. With approval of the Director of Graduate Studies, the nomination memo (with accompanying CV or other documentation of expertise) is forward to the Dean of the Graduate School for final approval. They have no additional rights and responsibilities in this program.

g. Table: Summary of Participation
The table below summarizes the roles and participation level for Graduate Faculty members committees within the Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs Program as described above.
B. Approval of Membership
