Congratulations to the Western Center’s 2013 award recipients! This year’s funded projects represent 10 of the 13 western states and together, address the following areas of risk — Production, Marketing, Financial, Legal, and Human Risk.

Projects articulate the primary source(s) of risk faced by each target audience and have identified a set of risk management results to address these risks.

Audiences served through these projects include:
- Native American Navajo livestock, wool and forage producers in Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah
- Refugee farmers in Arizona
- Women farmers and ranchers in Washington, Oregon and Idaho
- Producers interested in expanding into Agritourism in California
- Annie’s Project in Wyoming
- Small and beginning farmers in Colorado
- Dairy and cow/calf producers in Utah
- Grain producers in Washington and Idaho
- Cattle producers in Washington
- Meat producers in Nevada and California
- Whole ranch planning in Colorado

Each project incorporates an array of established risk management tools and/or will develop new tools, resources and services to effectively improve farmers and ranchers profitability.

Stakeholder Input (click here)
Please click on the Stakeholder Input Tab at http://westrme.wsu.edu to provide comments, suggestions or recommendations that will be considered in the 2014 ERME RFA.