2015 Outdoor Participation

11.7 Billion Outdoor Outings
82.5 Average Outings Per Participant

Nearly half of all Americans — 48.4% — participated in at least one outdoor activity in 2015. That equates to 142.4 million participants, who went on a collective 11.7 billion outdoor outings. While the actual number of outdoor participants increased by one million over the one-year period, the overall participation rate remained the same due to population increase.

Aspirational participation, which measures the physical activities that interest non-participants, showed that Americans are often drawn to outdoor recreation over sports, fitness and leisure activities. In fact, all aspirational participants — regardless of age — reported camping and bicycling in their top three most appealing activities.

Paddle sports continued to be a growing sector in the outdoor industry. Over the past three years, stand up paddling was the top activity for growth, increasing participation an average of 26 percent from 2012 to 2015. Kayak fishing, white water kayaking and sea/tour kayaking also saw some of the biggest participation increases during that time. While participation in running/jogging was down 5 percent from 2014 to 2015, running-related activities gained in popularity. Participation in traditional triathlon grew the most over the year, increasing by 24 percent. Adventure racing, non-traditional triathlon and trail running were also among the year's top trending outdoor activities.

The Outdoor Foundation® has produced the Outdoor Recreation Participation Topline Report to provide a snapshot of American participation in outdoor activities with a focus on youth and young adults. The report is based on an online survey of 32,658 Americans ages 6 and older. A more in-depth look at outdoor participation in America is forthcoming.

Ages 6 to 24 Aspirational Youth & Young Adult Participation

Aspirational participation measures non-participants' interest in specific outdoor recreation, sports, fitness and leisure activities. When comparing the types of activities that appeal to non-participants, many aspirational participants reported being drawn to outdoor recreation. In fact, youth and young adults in every age cohort reported camping as their top interest. Bicycling came in second among aspirational young adult participants, ages 18 to 24, and the activity came in third among non-participants, ages 6 to 12 and ages 13 to 27. Hiking and running/jogging were also activities that each age group wanted to try.

Aspirational Adult Participation

For aspirational adult participants of all ages — and aspirational participants of all ages — camping and bicycling were in the top 3 most interesting activities out of a range of outdoor, sports, fitness and leisure activities. Hiking and running/jogging also rated in the top 10 most appealing activities among adult participants. Indeed, Americans who wanted to try new activities were most drawn to different forms of outdoor recreation.

2015 Positive Outdoor Trends

Paddle sports continued to be a bright spot in outdoor participation. Over the past 3 years, stand up paddling was the top outdoor activity for growth, increasing participation an average of 26 percent from 2012 to 2015. Kayak fishing, white water kayaking and sea/tour kayaking also saw some of the biggest participation increases over the three-year period. While participation in running/jogging was down 5 percent from 2014 to 2015, running-related activities tended to gain in popularity. Participation in traditional triathlon grew the most over the year, increasing by 24 percent. Adventure racing, non-traditional triathlon and trail running were also among the year's top trending outdoor activities.

Method

During the 2015 calendar year, a total of 32,658 online interviews were carried out with a nationwide sample of individuals and households from the US Online Panel of over one million people operated by Synovate/IPSOS. A total of 15,167 individual and 17,491 household surveys were completed. The total panel is maintained to be representative of the US population for people ages six and older. Over sampling of ethnic groups took place to boost response from typically under responding groups.

The 2015 participation survey sample size of 32,658 completed interviews provides a high degree of statistical accuracy. All surveys are subject to some level of standard error — that is, the degree to which the results might differ from those obtained by a complete census of every person in the US. A sport with a participation rate of five percent has a confidence interval of plus or minus 0.24 percentage points at the 95 percent confidence level.

A weighting technique was used to balance the data to reflect the total US population ages six and above. The following variables were used: gender, age, income, household size, region, population density and panel join date. The total population figure used was 249,141,894 people ages six and older.

About the Physical Activity Council (PAC)

The survey that forms the basis of the Topline Report is produced by the Physical Activity Council (PAC), which is a partnership of leading organizations in the US sports, fitness and leisure industries. While the overall aim of the survey is to establish levels of activity and identify key trends in sports, fitness and recreation participation, each partner produces detailed reports on their specific areas of interest. Partners include: the Outdoor Foundation (OF); National Golf Foundation (NGF); Snowsports Industries America (SIA); Tennis Industry Association (TIA); USA Football; United States Tennis Association (USTA), International Health, Racquet and Sportsclub Association (IHRSA); and Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association (SGMA).

About The Outdoor Foundation

Founded in 2000, the Outdoor Foundation is a national not-for-profit organization dedicated to inspiring and growing future generations of outdoor leaders and enthusiasts. Through youth engagement, community grant-making and groundbreaking research, the Foundation works with young leaders and partners to mobilize a major cultural shift that leads all Americans to the great outdoors.
