WELCOME & AGENDA REVIEW

Amanda welcomed Sentencing Grid Subgroup (Subgroup) members and reviewed the agenda.

STATE V. BLAKE PROPOSED RECOMMENDATIONS DRAFT MEMO

Nick Straley summarized the draft memo with proposed recommendations he volunteered to craft in response to the Subgroup's discussion of State v. Blake during last week's meeting. The proposed recommendations for the Task Force to consider:

1. That it should task the Sentencing Guidelines Commission with reviewing the implications of the Blake decision as part of a broader analysis of Washington's drug laws and report back to the legislature before the next session.
2. The legislature should also task and fund WSIPP or another appropriate research body with researching the impacts of the Blake decision. (See Supporting Materials section for additional detail on what such a research agenda should include).
3. The Legislature should not take action on addressing RCW 69.50.4013(1) this session and should wait for the research to be done and the SGC to provide recommendations.

Nick noted these align with recommendations the Task Force reached consensus on last year, specifically #4, #5, and #8. He also noted that these proposed recommendations, if adopted and followed, would examine the geographic and racial disparities in Washington's drug law sentencing.

Subgroup members continued their discussion of the impacts of the Blake decision. Jon Tunheim noted that most prosecutors are dismissing all local possession charges (i.e., for individuals currently in jails) and that the Department of Corrections (DOC) is in the process of producing a list of individuals currently confined just on possession charges so these charges can be dismissed. The Subgroup also discussed DOC's efforts to produce a list of currently incarcerated individuals whose prior possession convictions were used in their criminal history score calculations. One member also noted the need to reconcile the legal financial obligations (LFOs) previously imposed on individuals for possession convictions—LFOs that are now unconstitutional.

The Subgroup also discussed the Blake decision's impact on court-ordered treatment. For example, if possession sentences are vacated for individuals serving time in inpatient treatment beds at DOC, the state can no longer legally pay for their treatment. Several Subgroup members noted concern about this, asking how we ensure sufficient resources are available to the voluntary treatment system and to individuals wanting to continue their treatment programs.

Representative Goodman provided an update on Legislative discussions of the Blake decision. He noted conversations thus far have focused on the need for massive investment in behavioral health, how and if the criminal statute should be amended to reinstate some form of possession crime, and how this law may impact juveniles. Representative Goodman also noted the Legislatures' renewed interest in establishing a justice reinvestment account.

Directing the conversation back to the draft memo and potential recommendations, the Facilitation Team asked Subgroup members if they wanted to present these to the full Task Force for their consideration, if any views/opinions were missing in their consideration of the Blake decision, and if any additions/revisions should be made to the draft potential recommendations.

Speaking from his experience as a law enforcement officer, Chief Cobb cautioned that before we legalize narcotics, we need to ensure the infrastructure for meaningful treatment is in place. The Chief noted his biggest concern is that for some folks suffering from substance abuse disorders, the only meaningful intervention is law enforcement, so until funding is available to support alternative treatment options, we should not eliminate law enforcement's ability to intervene. Although some members disagreed about the extent to which the judicial system has led to meaningful recovery for individuals suffering from addiction, all members agreed that Chief Cobb's call for explicit funding and support for alternative treatment and intervention approaches should be included in the memo.

Action Item: Nick Straley agreed to revise the draft memo to include an explicit call for funding of behavior health and substance abuse treatment resources.
