Introduction

Cospia is a landscape management company that covers all over Korea. In Yeosu, they were managing a community that is over 60 acre which contains houses, pool, golf practice yard, soccer field and a lot of amenities.

Responsibilities

I was responsible for managing landscapes like mowing grass and cutting down some trees. Due to the large community size, we divided the zones into eight and finished one section a day, and as the grass continued to grow in summer, we continued to go back to the first section and did the same thing.

Summary

It was no easy task to do such physical labor in the summer when it was over 30 degrees Celsius. I couldn't believe at first that a team of only four managed this big community, and I didn't want to. So I didn't want to work more and more, unlike the first words I promised. But when I became lazy, I realized that my teammates had to cover a lot more work, so I pulled myself together. As an intern, I thought landscaping would take a lot of people's effort. In fact, I thought the garden always remained the same. However, the always beautifully managed garden contained the efforts of many people. Among them, I always wanted to thank the gardeners for their work, which I had only seen passing by.
