Throughout the internship I managed to gain and improve on some valuable trait. For example, I feel like I was able to manage my time a little better throughout the season by scheduling my day, prioritizing important things and just going to sleep earlier than what I usually would. I also gained a lot of knowledge on the world of potatoes. I believe this really opens the door for me for future jobs or another internship next summer because of how well the internship went and because of the type of company I worked for as well. I just want to pursue this type of work of just being outside, so It has also opened my eyes a bit more on what type of job I want in the future.
