To whom it may concern:

Ms. Modhurima Dey Amin is an exemplary instructor. Summer 2019, I had the pleasure of attending Economic Sciences 102: Fundamentals of Macroeconomics taught by Ms. Modhurima Dey Amin. She made the class interesting by providing variety in the course to increase engagement. She did this by not only lecturing during class, but providing videos, graphs/examples on the board, group projects and in-class questions. She redid standard presentations to better fit her lectures and make them visually appealing.

Teaching is a priority for her, as seen by the time and effort she put in to work with students in Economics 102 and create a successful, positive and interactive class. She is dedicated to ensuring that the content in her class is well understood and supports different learning methods by providing student with different ways to engage the class. She is willing to spend time outside of class explaining concepts to ensure material is understood.

As a non-traditional student, balancing a full-time job as well as a family, Ms. Dey Amin has been very accommodating and flexible to ensure that I was able to be successful. Whether it was morning or evening, her dedication to her class was evident with her prompt responses to emails or the time she takes after class. She has stayed after class on many occasions to explain a homework problem that I had been struggling with and accommodated my schedule when the final exam ran into childcare pick-up times.

What I enjoyed most and have taken away from her class was the time she spent developing relationships with her students. She knew each and every name in the course and would address us during class. She would take time to explain course work but would also check-in with the class and connect with us on a more personal level. She shared information about the economics field outside of class including information on her most recent research and conference presentation.

Taking Economic Sciences 102 with Ms. Modhurima Dey Amin has taught me a lot and I feel I have a good understanding of the fundamentals of macroeconomics. She would be a wonderful addition to any university. If you would like to discuss my experience further, please do not hesitate to contact me. You can reach me via email at Roseanne.August@wsu.edu.

Sincerely,

Roseanne August
