At the start of the 20th century, W.E.B. DuBois predicted that “the color line” would be the fundamental preoccupation of the 20th century. As visionary as his remarks proved to be, he did not foresee the lasting significance of race and ethnicity in American society. Arguably, today, more than ever, “the color line” shapes social life and self-understandings. This course endeavors to make sense of the meaning of race in post-Civil Rights America, while introducing students to the key theories and concepts of ethnic studies. On the one hand, it strives to discern the persistence and reconfiguration of stereotypes, prejudice, institutionalized discrimination, and the like in a supposedly color blind society. On the other hand, it aims to clarify the ways in which race and ethnicity foster identities and communities. Throughout, readings and discussions focus on the ubiquity, centrality, productivity, and plasticity of race and ethnicity, emphasizing both their impact and import to historical inequities, social relations, and cultural politics in the United States and beyond. Readings and discussions strive to incorporate a range of experiences and perspectives, comparing and contrasting particularly those of African Americans, Asian Americans, EuroAmericans, and Native Americans (or indigenous peoples). Although we think about the big picture, we never lose sight of small things and local practices. To this end, the university as a social space centers our attention, encouraging us to think about learning and socialization, the exclusionary consequences of testing, debates over curriculum, struggles over affirmative action, social justice movements (organizing against sweat shops for instance) and the implications of increasing corporatization of higher education.

Objectives

This course has five objectives. First, it seeks to enhance understandings of the scope and significance of race and ethnicity. Second, it strives to enable students to locate themselves within the racialized terrain of American culture. Third, it endeavors to introduce students to a range of theories and concepts at the center of ethnic studies. Fourth, fostering self-reflection and critical social perspectives, it also aims to create a learning environment in which students seriously and sensitively engage race and ethnicity. Fifth, it seeks to improve students’ critical thinking and communicative skills.
Required Readings

There are three required books in this class. Both are available for purchase at the Bookie; used copies may also be obtained online (abebooks.com, amazon.com, and half.com all are good resources for locating used books).

In addition, supplemental readings will be available in one of two ways, either online or in a reader. The latter may be purchased at Cougar Copies in the CUB.

Expectations and Policies

This course emphasizes active learning. It stresses discovery, analysis, and application through listening talking, reading, reflecting, and writing. It sets aside lecturing in favor of interaction and discussion. Given the subject of the class, our explorations demand respect and sensitivity; open and honest communication is essential to understanding. All participants are expected to come to class prepared, to be engaged and open once in class and to contribute to our ongoing discussions. A few points of etiquette warrant reiteration:

- Treat others with respect and courtesy.
- Show up to class on time. Students arriving late or leaving early disrupt the class and should not anticipate receiving credit for attendance.
- Do the readings and assignments.
- Do not have private conversation in class.
- Do not read the paper or work on assignments for other classes.
- Turn your cell phones off.

This is a reading intensive, discussion oriented class, thus I expect each student to carefully read and think critically about the assigned readings and come to class prepared to actively participate in class discussion, group activities, and individual writing assignments. Student participation will be evaluated on quality as well as quantity. If you remain quiet throughout the semester or rarely express yourself, you can expect to your participation grade to suffer accordingly. Of course, one cannot participate, if s/he does not attend class. Students are expected to attend every class and will be awarded points for each day that they do. Missing class for legitimate, documented reasons (such as school sponsored event or illness) will be excused; oversleeping, job interview, work, dental visit and the like are important to be sure, but not legitimate reasons to miss class.

Academic Integrity

PLAGARISM OR CHEATING OF ANY KIND ON ANY ASSIGNMENT OR EXAM WILL NOT BE TOLERATED AND WILL RESULT IN A FAILING GRADE IN THE COURSE. (Consult the WSU Student Handbook for further details). In other words, do your own work. If using the ideas, work or wording of another in written assignments acknowledge the source. Do not offer or accept assistance during the examination.

Disability Accomodation

Reasonable accomodations are available for students with documented disasbilities. Please let me know about any disabilities at the start of the term. Contact the Disability Resource Center in 205 Administration Annex 335-1566 for testing, documentation, or additional information.

Office Hours

As noted above, I will hold regular office hours each week (Tuesdays 10:30-12:00 and Thursdays 1:30-3:00). Come see me if you are intrigued by something you read about for class or that was said in class and would like to read more about it. Come see me if you are puzzled or troubled about something that was said in class. Come see me if you need help with the term project, writing assignments, or readings. Come see me to talk about your grade. Come see me if you have ideas about how to make the course better.

Grading

Attendance and Participation (20%)

Students will receive credit for each class period they attended. Students may miss two class periods, no questions asked. Students missing more than ten classes will fail the class. Absences for legitimate, documented reasons will be excused.

Student participation is assessed both for quality and quantity. This portion of the grade also measures in-class work (in groups for instance).
Reading Notes (15%)
At the start of each class period, students will turn in a 3x5 note card bearing two open-ended questions or comments for each assigned reading. These cards will be evaluated for their connection with the reading (do they suggest the student read?) and quality (would they foster productive discussion?)

Writing Assignments (30%)
On several occasions, students will write brief papers. These will require critical thinking and interpretation. Papers will be evaluated for clarity, cohesiveness, creativity, and completeness. Specific details for each paper will be distributed well in advance of their due dates.

All assignments must be completed in order to pass the class. No exceptions.

Late assignments will be penalized one letter grade per day.

Group Projects (35%)
Students will complete group projects on issues of race and racism in their everyday lives, ideally at Washington State University. Students will make presentations of their work to the class and hopefully the CES Conference. Students will also complete a written component. Specific details will be discussed in class and distributed well in advance.

Some Guidelines
This is a class seeks to promote mutual growth and shared learning about challenging subjects. To achieve this ideal, we will have to work together, treat one another respect, and push ourselves to get beyond our comfort zones. We will encounter difficult topics and sensitive material that may at times disturb or offend. This is perhaps unavoidable given that the readings and discussions prompt us to take up themes often left silent in our society, including race and racism, power and oppression, conflict and struggle. With this in mind, the following guidelines are meant to encourage open, productive, and reflexive conversations.

1. Acknowledge the existence of institutionalized forms of oppression, particularly racism, classism, sexism, and heterosexism.

2. Listen to others.

3. Create a safe environment for discussion. Think the language in which you choose to express yourself. Be aware that how you talk may impact others and their willingness to share. Avoid words that hurt, stigmatize, stereotype, or silence others.

4. Be respectful. Do not interrupt. Do not belittle. Treat others with the same dignity and compassion you would expect.
5. Be engaged. Commit yourself to the material, to getting at its political and personal implications.

6. Be open to others and their opinions.

7. Actively participate.

8. Read critically. Ask yourself: What is significant in this piece? What are the central arguments and what do they mean? What do they teach? How do they challenge? What feels or emotions do they evoke anger/sadness/laughter?

9. Reflect on your position. Recognize where you are at, that is, how your life, desires, and interpretations fit in a broader social context. Be willing to name your prejudices, ideologies, and privileges.

10. Resist the temptation to dismiss positions before you take them seriously.

11. Ground your comments in evidence.

12. Agree to actively work against myths and stereotypes.

13. Appreciate the knowledge and experience of your peers.

14. Avoid blaming.

15. Remember class discussions should not be about embarrassing, showing off, winning, losing. Our meetings rather should be about dialogue, self-reflection, and learning.
Tentative Course Outline

11 Jan  Opening

Race as Social Construction

13 Jan  Race the Power Illusion. (video shown in class)

18 Jan  Audrey Smedley, “Race and the Construction of Human Identity” (Reserve).

20 Jan  No Class.

Race and Classification

25 Jan  Judith Goode, “Dousing the Fire or Fanning the Flames” in Life, 62-83.

27 Jan  Maureen Mahon, “Black Like This,” in Life, 302-326.

(White) Privilege

1 Feb  http://www.anarchistblackcross.org/org/wp/peggy.html
       http://uts.cc.utexas.edu/~rjensen/freelance/whiteprivilege.htm
       http://uts.cc.utexas.edu/~rjensen/freelance/whitefolo.htm
       see also: www.whiteprivilege.com/

3 Feb  The House that Race Built (video shown in class).

The Problems of Whiteness

8 Feb  Julia Hall, “It Hurts to be a Girl,” in Life, 329-339.

White Supremacy: Extreme and Mainstream

15 Feb   Abby Ferber, “Mongrel Monstrosities” (Reader).
17 Feb   Howard Winant, “Racism Today” (Reader).
          Amy Ansell, “The New Face of Race” (Reader).

On Western Civilization

22 Feb   Inventing Western Civilization, 9-44.
24 Feb   Inventing Western Civilization, 45-85.
1 March  Inventing Western Civilization, 87-132.
10 March Group Conferences

15 March  No Class. Spring Break!
17 March  No Class. Spring Break!

The Racial Politics of Higher Education

12 April  Open
14 April  No Class.
19 April  Group Presentations
21 April  No Class.  Attend CES Undergraduate Conference (22 April).
26 April  Group Presentations
28 April  Group Presentations