The Western Journal of Black Studies

Since 1977, The Western Journal of Black Studies (WJBS) has been a leading interdisciplinary journal that is devoted to publishing scholarly articles, from a wide range of disciplines, that focus mainly on the experience of African Americans in the United States of America. This journal publishes articles that, as its name implies, report original investigations and contribute new knowledge and understanding to the field of Black American studies. Theoretical articles and works concerning the African Diaspora are welcome if whatever possible they include data research and implications for applicability. All manuscripts are selected by blind peer review.
