

Pancakes for Dinner

By Michael Mortenson

I heard the angry chirrup
of the alarm,
and saw incandescent light
spilling outwards
onto the porch.

The porchlight was off.
And there, in the yard,
reposed a pan of bacon,
charred and steaming,
in the snow.